

New York City Bar's Litigation Funding Working Group Reveals New Report

01/26/21

Third-party litigation funding has received significant attention, including from bar associations, which have considered the ethical and legal frameworks implicated by funding.

Jordan Goldstein, head of the disclosure subcommittee of the New York City Bar Association's Litigation Funding Working Group, will join a panel of fellow members for a live webinar to discuss the Group's newly released report, which addresses: (i) the ethical rules regarding litigation funding of lawyers and law firms, (ii) current practices in litigation funding and guidelines for the future, (iii) issues of disclosure related to litigation funding, and (iv) litigation funding in the consumer arena.
