

Selendy Gay Names Four New Partners

11/06/23

Selendy Gay is pleased to announce the elevation of four new partners, effective January 1, 2024: David Coon, Michael Duke, Will Rathgeber, and Vivek Tata. The firm's newest partners are experienced trial and appellate litigators who advise clients in federal and state courts, arbitration hearings, and investigations.

"Our new partners have distinguished themselves as first-rate litigators, firm citizens, and advocates for justice," said Maria Ginzburg, Selendy Gay's managing partner. "We have always been proud to call David, Mike, Will, and Vivek colleagues, and we are delighted to now welcome them into our partnership."

The promotions will bring the firm's number of partners to 19 and associates to 59.

"Our new partners represent our commitment to organic growth, as well as to providing the experiences and training required of the most elite, strategic, and thoughtful litigators," said Faith Gay, co-founder of Selendy Gay. "Clients come to Selendy Gay because they know that our lawyers – from junior associates through senior partners – have the instincts, acuity, and creativity to win their most complex, business-critical cases.”

“The elevation of four partners this year underscores the firm’s continued momentum,” said Philippe Selendy, co-founder of Selendy Gay. “Our relentless focus on excellence – in representing our clients and in developing our lawyers – ensures that our firm remains state-of-the-art.”
