

Litigating with a Long View: Selendy Gay's Integrated Approach to Appellate Law

09/11/25

Selendy Gay was featured in a Lawdragon article on the firm's innovative approach to appellate law, which is considered at the outset of every matter.

"We bring appellate lawyers into our cases from the very beginning so that the strategy has the end game in mind from day one," said Special Counsel Corey Stoughton, who came to Selendy Gay in 2024 as a key member of the firm's appellate practice.

The article also highlighted the breadth of Selendy Gay's appellate focus, which ranges from bankruptcy to constitutional law to emerging areas like crypto-asset litigation, where the ground is rife for appeals.

"Our foundation in trial practice means that we are able to get really smart, really fast on clients' cases, no matter how niche or complex," added David Coon, a Selendy Gay partner who has won several high-profile appeals in the Second Circuit and U.S. Supreme Court. "We leverage that deep understanding of the trial court record to design appellate strategies that maximize our clients' likelihood of success."
