

Temidayo Aganga-Williams Authors New York Chapter for Chambers Financial Crime 2026

06/22/26

Selendy Gay partner Temidayo Aganga-Williams authored the New York Trends and Developments chapter in Chambers and Partners' Financial Crime 2026 guide.

The chapter explores how New York continues to shape the national financial crime enforcement landscape through a series of significant developments, including the revival of the federal "Financial Kingpin" statute in corporate fraud prosecutions, new voluntary self-disclosure programs for companies, the first insider trading prosecution involving prediction markets, and ongoing regulatory oversight of cryptocurrency businesses.

Examining both enforcement initiatives and regulatory developments, the chapter highlights New York's continued role in setting the agenda for financial crime enforcement and corporate compliance.
