Sophie Lipman is a litigator who represents both plaintiffs and defendants in complex commercial disputes in state and federal courts across the country.

Sophie advises clients in a broad range of matters involving securities fraud, civil RICO, contract interpretation, bankruptcy, and constitutional law, among other areas. Her clients include companies in the telecommunications, monoline insurance, finance, and biotechnology industries.

In her public interest practice, she has co-authored an amicus brief in the U.S. Supreme Court and currently represents non-profit tenant advocacy groups defending the constitutionality of New York's rent stabilization laws.

Sophie earned her J.D. from Yale Law School, where she was an executive editor of the Yale Law and Policy Review and served as a teaching assistant for Professor Robert Post.
